

Corlin Allrich is a high school teacher in Williamsburg, Brooklyn, NY.

Corlin ended his senior year of college thinking that he should have been an education major but he graduated with a degree in Biology. Following his graduation, he worked in three jobs across two companies in the Biotech industry.

After being fired or laid off for the third time, he tried his luck with the NYC Teaching Fellows. For the past 16.5 years, he has been working in Title I schools where he developed his own curriculum and strategies to ensure students are successful in the sciences and grow to love the subject with an equal or even higher passion as Corlin has.

Corlin is dedicated to help EDsnaps develop strategies to improve scientific literacy and literacy in general.
